Upon the petition of Judith H. Holbrook, widow of John Holbrook, late of Plymouth, in said county, deceased, for an allowance out of the personal estate of which said deceased died possessed,

ORDERED, That said widow give public notice to all persons interested, by causing a copy of this order to be published three weeks successively in The Bangor Weekly Courier, a newspaper published in Bangor, in said County, that they may appear at a Court of Probate for said county, to be held at the Probate Office in said Bangor, on the last Tuesday in May next, at ten of the clock in the forenoon, and show cause, if any they have, why the same should not be granted.

18 AMBROSE C. FLINT, Register.

To the Honorable Judge of Probate for the County of Penobscot:

The undersigned, guardian of Melville F. Simpson, minor heir of Alfred Simpson, late of Corinna, in said County, deceased, respectfully represents that said Alfred Simpson died seized of his homestead farm situate partly in said Corinna and partly in Newport, same described in deed recorded in Penobscot Registry of Deeds, Vol. 422, page 126, leaving surviving him his widow, said minor and three other adult children, his heirs.

That said real estate is so situated it cannot be advantageously divided among said heirs, that it is proposed to have set out to Lydia E. Whitney, one of said heirs, as her portion of said farm, a strip of land one hundred and eleven rods long by twenty six rods wide, off of the west side of that part of said farm which is situate in said Corinna, and it is proposed that the widow purchase the interest in said farm of the other two of said heirs and hold the same in common with said minor interest in the whole farm and that she and said minor carry the same on together.

That therefore it would be for the benefit of said minor to have his interest in said strip of land to be set out to said Lydia E. exchanged for an equal interest in the remaining portion of said homestead farm.

Therefore said guardian prays that license may be granted him to make such exchange by conveying said minor's interest in said strip of land to said Lydia E., upon the said Lydia E. conveying to said minor an equal interest in the remaining portion of said homestead farm, as provided by Sect. 1, chapt. 71, R. S.

JOBBERY A HUNDRED YEARS AGO.

Mr. Charles C. Coffin has an article in a recent number of the Congregationalist, designed to show that the corruption in public men and affairs over which we so much mourn, bad as it is, is even less than existed one hundred years ago. As an antidote to croaking, it is worthy of reprinting in our columns.

Is it true that we are so much worse than our fathers? Is it true that the "good old time" were so much better, after all, than the present? Instead of accepting the assertion, let us turn to the records of the "good old times" of honest dealing.

In 1732 some citizens of Newbury, Mass., applied to the Colonial Legislature for a grant of land in the valley of the Merrimack, at a place called Contoocook. Their application was successful. In laying out their plantation into lots, they set aside first ten farms—nine of the farms containing each three hundred acres, and one containing five hundred acres—"to gentlemen," as read the record—"who had added and assisted them in obtaining the grants." These gentlemen's names are given. The one who received five hundred acres, for which he had paid no money, was John Chandler, son of Deacon John Chandler, of Woodstock, then a town in Massachusetts, but now in Connecticut. He was a member of His Majesty's Council, judge of the court of common pleas for Worcester, judge and register of probate—holding all these offices at the time, and till his death in 1743.

Another "gentleman" was John Wainwright, judge of the court of common pleas of Essex, another was Richard Kent, special justice of the Essex court of common pleas. Another was Ebenezer Burrill, one of His Majesty's councillors from 1731 to 1746. The records show that all of the ten gentlemen were, either by themselves or families, in official position. One cannot resist the conviction that the men of that day occupying official position had a Credit Mobilier on a small scale. And not it neither; for when we turn to the grants made year after year by the governor and council, and assemblies, we shall find that there were always "gentlemen assistants," who were connected in some way with the government. Judge John Chandler became a mighty landholder, and so did Gov. Benning Wentworth of New Hampshire. His Excellency reserved a goodly slice in every township granted in New Hampshire and Vermont. He was himself a Credit Mobilier. His councillors imitated his example. It was a system in Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New York, and in all the colonies. No investigating committees were ordered to inquired into the conduct of officials in land-grabbing. It was one to the perquisites of office to take land.

We turn to the pages of Revolutionary history for information in regard to that period. On the 4th of July 1775, Nathaniel Greene, commanding the Rhode Island troops besieging Boston, with his headquarters at Roxbury, writes to Deputy Gov. Cooke, in regard to provisions furnished by contractors:

"Some barrels do not have much more than one-half or two-thirds the quantity they ought to contain. I wish your honor would desire the committee throughout the colony to examine all the provisions sent to camp, for I am very positive they must have been greatly imposed upon. The field officers are continually complaining of imposition. * * *

A quantity of bread arrived from Providence last week, and to-day the much greater part was mouldy and unfit for use. * * There was a quantity of beef condemned last week, as being horse meat. When it first took rise I thought it chimerical. But Capt. Jerry Cleny, Capt. Kitt Cluny, and many others, came and informed me that the people had a conceit that it was horse flesh, that they had gone without victuals all day, and they desired me to inquire into the matter. I accordingly did get a jury of butchers to examine it, and they condemned it as unfit for use, a considerable part being horse-flesh. Capt. John Collins of Newport happened to be at camp at the same time, and said he had seen abundance of horse beef, and was confident that this was that kind." (Greene's life Vol. 1.)

On the 28th of Nov. 1775, Gen. Washington, from his headquarters in Cambridge, writes to Joseph Reed in Philadelphia about matters in the army,

"Such dearth of public spirit and such want of virtue, such stock jobbery and fertility in all low arts to obtain advantage of one kind and another in this great change of military arrangement, I never saw before, and I pray God's mercy that I may never be witness again."

While Greene is writing about horse beef, and Washington about jobbery, Capt. Henry Dearborn and the officers and men toiling up the Kennebec on their way to Qubec, are cursing the rascality of the men who build their boats by contract—so leaky that before they leave the Kennebec their flour is spoiled. Similar jobbery existed through the rebellion.

Doctor Benjamin Church, patriot, member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, committee to wait upon Washington into camp, surgeon general of the army, carried on treasonable correspondence with the enemy. Gen. Lee deliberately planned to supplant Washington. Gen. Gates, Adjutant General of the army, on that gloomy day in December 1777, the night before Christmas, while the soldiers were on their march to Trenton, was riding from Trenton to Baltimore to use his influence with Congress to supplant Washington. Then there was the Conway Cabal. When we study the times of the revolution, we find that intrigue, jobbery, bribery, corruption, extravagance, as well as patriotism and self denial, were characteristics of the times.

We moan over the extravagance of these days, in contrast with the simplicity of that period. But what shall we say to this inventory of "Lord" Stirling's wardrobe:

"31 coats 53 vests, 43 pairs of breeches, 6 powdering gowns, 2 pair trousers, 30 shirts, 17 handkerchiefs, 27 stocks, 27 cravats, 8 razor cloths, 119 pairs of hose, 6 pairs of socks, 15 night caps, 5 pairs of drawers, 2 pairs of gloves, 14 pairs of shoes, 4 pairs of boots."

In all 412 articles. This was in the time of the revolution—the period of self-denial—for Stirling died in 1783. It was the period of republican simplicity!

In turning the matter over, I have come to the conclusion that those who in their righteous indignation at the rascalities of the present, declare there never has been such a time for jobbery as now, have not made themselves familiar with the history of the past. The rascalities of the present, glaring as they are, had their counterpart one hundred years ago. There is this difference, however: Judge, counsellor, register, Col. John Chandler, could be a land-grabber without any defilement of his official robes. Gov. Benning Wentworth and his councellors could stipulate with grantees for the fairest lots of land in the township, and no one thought of impeachment. Jobbery was a recognized perquisite of office, and the public entered no protest. Not so in this Centennial year. The people now will not tolerate any man suspected of jobbery. How long would John Chandler continue in office if he were alive to-day? How long would Benning Wentworth go unimpeached? The public have rejected the officials who had anything to do with the Credit Mobilier. An Attorney General who set up a horse and carriage at the expense of government is in political exile in Oregon. The chief corruptionist, Tweed, is a fugitive from justice—a man without a country. The late Secretary of War fell in a night, before the nation's indignation. Men occupying judiciary positions, and advancing their own interests thereby, are repudiated by the public—witness the downfall of the late vice-presidential candidate for the democracy and aspirant for the presidency—aspirant no longer. Politically he is as dead as one of the mummies of old Memphis.

This routing out of men guilty, or suspected even of jobbery, is in pleasing contrast to those days when judges and governors and councellors could be jobbers by system, and no one call them to account. In this quickening of the moral sensibilities of the people lies our hope for the future, our assurance that Christianity is not a failure, but that the world is growing better day by day. May the lightning continue to flash till the political atmosphere is made wholly sweet and pure.

CAMPAIGN SLANDER

(From the Lorton Traveller

Every Presidential campaign has its own peculiar evils and there never has been a disputed contest there that did not have the effect of showing that all the candidates were the worst men in the country, and therefore the most unfit to receive the country's support. Washington was as freely talked of as ever was Grant or Jackson, though he was never a candidate when he was the favorite object of Democratic [illegible] and it was generally understood that he was about to retire altogether from public life. That John Adams was as bad as man could be was an accepted notion of the Democrats of his time, and he was attacked from within as well as from without—by Federalists, that is, as well as by Democrats. Mr Jefferson was without one good quality according to his foes and he entertained the [illegible] most fixed designs against the law and against the Constitution and with the assistance of Mr Thomas Paine he meant to shut up all the churches, burn all the Bibles and devour all and sundry the [illegible] in New England. Mr Madison was charged with the [illegible] and he was expected [illegible] English and General Ross [illegible] to keep company with Napoleon in Elba [illegible]. Mr Monroe was set down as an imbecile [illegible] John Quincy Adams was charged with having been guilty of gross offences and with having married one of King George's daughters—and he was advertised as a runaway by Democratic journals. The offences of Andrew Jackson were innumerable and ranged all the way from murder and seduction to the roasting of Indians and the [illegible] of Burr. Mr. Van Buren was looked upon as the craftiest of mankind [illegible] having instigated President Jackson to the performance of all kinds of evil deeds and he [illegible] in 1840 was compared to a fox [illegible] the Whigs being in at the death. Our later Presidents have fared no better from Harrison to Grant and the candidates for the Presidency who did not succeed [illegible] much abused as if they had been elected to that much sought place. Was there ever a man more and more bitterly assailed than Henry Clay who never [illegible] without being beaten [illegible] little who was up—he was sure to be put down if hard words and hard blows could accomplish the fall—as they did. Remembering these things we do not attach much importance to the attacks made upon leading Republicans by our present race of Democrats. They are doing no more than was done by other men in earlier times. The only difference is to be found in the modes of attack and every Presidential campaign sees variations in these modes. There are several Republicans, each of eminence, who are considerably talked of in connection with the Presidential nomination and not one of them has escaped attacks of the most infamous kind. Had these gentlemen remained unnamed they never would have been libelled and should twenty more Republicans be brought forward in the same way in the same way will they be assailed. It is a part of the performance in what is a political melodrama and no one ought to be surprised at what has taken place or at what is yet to be done in the same line. Were the Republicans to put off their nominating work till the 1st of November, and then to nominate two men who never before had been heard of the Democrats would be out on the 2d of November with elaborate narratives of the various and flagrant misdeeds of those candidates. That is their manner of conducting the campaign of 1876 and they have adopted it because it is beyond their capacity to do anything but to invent lies about their opponents. They have no principles, and they wish to distract attention from their old anti-Union words and doings. They act from the necessity of the case, and take the tools with which they are most familiar. A year hence they will laugh at their own proceedings, and no more think of them seriously than the anti-Jackson men of 1829 thought seriously of the coffin handbills which they used so freely in 1828.

THE HOUSE STAMPEDED ON A REBEL RAID. The Boston Advertiser's Washington special of Monday says: "There was another beautiful exhibition of demoralization in the House this afternoon, just before adjournment. Everything was sailing along smoothly, when Atkins, of Tennessee, introduced a resolution instructing the Committee on Appropriation to insert in the Post-office appropriation bill a provision for the payment of the salaries due the postmasters and mail contractors in the Southern States who went into the rebellion. A vote was taken, and the chair (Mr. Cox) decided the resolution adopted. The Republicans then called for a vote by yeas and nays. At this the Northern Democrats began to scatter and Mr. Atkins withdrew his resolution. The Republicans wanted a vote and Mr. Garfield renewed the motion to adopt the resolution demanding the yeas and nays. The Democrats were utterly demoralized and were about to stampede when Hiester Clymer moved to adjourn and it was carried by a strict party vote. This is about the only sensible thing Clymer has done this session."

The Concord Monitor, in an article on the Presidency, says: "Our own individual opinion is that a majority of Republicans in this State favor James G. Blaine—not alone because he has been a tried and true Republican since the foundation of the party and possesses in a marked degree the necessary ability, sagacity and experience, but because he represents New England thought, opinion and interests, and if elected would give to New England that influence in the nation for years to come to which she is justly entitled, yet of which she has been deprived since the administration of John Quincy Adams. And we have no doubt that were the issue narrowed down to an expression of choice between Blaine and all the other candidates Blaine would win."

WHAT MR. WILLARD SAYS. Mr Harrison in making his charges against Mr Blaine in connection with the Union Pacific Bond matter, referred to Mr. Willard, an Omaha banker and also Government Director of the Union Pacific Road as having knowledge of the transaction in question. Mr Willard has made a statement in which he says: "Mr. Harrison knows no more concerning any and all transactions of the company than I do, and there has been nothing in the affairs of the company that affects Mr Blaine injuriously. I have thoroughly examined the records of the company twice with reference to this matter and there is nothing there that directly or indirectly affects Mr Blaine."

The Democrats of the House have had the tables turned upon them to their amazement by Hallett Kilbourne who offers now that he [illegible] in jail to afford any House committee every facility at his office for the examination of his books. He has written a letter to Speaker Kerr saying that he refused to answer questions only because he chose to resist an invasion of his rights as a citizen and in proof that he was truthful in declaring that his books contained no evidence affecting public interest he offers to lay all his books open [illegible] that the committee [illegible] shall not allow to be published the business transactions of a purely private character. The proposal has taken the House [illegible].

THE PUBLIC DEBT. The April Debt Statement shows an aggregate reduction for the [illegible] month just closed of $2,0[illegible]0,750 168 which is over [illegible] millions greater than the aggregate reduction made during the corresponding ten months of the first fiscal year or an average excess over the reduction of that year of nearly one million of dollars per month. The actual gold balance compared with the March statement has increased $8[illegible]35,017. The amount of legal tender notes outstanding is $370,[illegible]375, which shows a decrease since the 1st of July last of $8,[illegible]43,[illegible]3.

A Democratic attempt to fasten on Senator Morton a charge of having misappropriated $250,000 while he was Governor of Indiana at the outbreak of the war is not a success. It only recalls the fact that on account of the course of the Copperhead majority in the Legislature Governor Morton had to borrow money to maintain the State credit in fitting out troops. Secretary Stanton advanced him $250,000 from of the war appropriation of Congress, all of which was repaid and the accounts were satisfactorily adjusted long ago.

The effect of Mr Blaine's demolition of the latest slander is thus tersely stated by the Washington correspondent of the Boston Advertiser: "Mr Blaine clipped off another head of the scandal hydra this afternoon. The story this time was made up, it appears from the fragments of an exploded falsehood which have been lying about loose here since 1873. Mr Blaine's friends regard it as significant that notwithstanding his long political life his enemies are already reduced to such pitiful accusations."

The session of the House on Monday was signalized by another attempt to repeal the Resumption act, by the refusal of the Democrats to order the investigations by committees to be made public and by the voting down of a resolution requiring the investigating committees to close up their work and report by June 10. The Democratic programme is to effect no legislation except of an obstructive character and to keep the secret scandal mills running into the Presidential campaign.

The Argus and Commercial, which have published all the charges and gossip against Mr Blaine, have again exhibited their disgusting meanness by garbling his conclusive reply and omitting entirely therefrom a large portion of the important documentary evidence. Comment upon the infamous course pursued by these papers is unnecessary.

The tactics employed by Mr Blaine's opponents are well illustrated by the fact that while every hearsay accusation in the West was telegraphed over the whole country, the important letter of Hon J F Wilson to the Chicago Tribune fully sustaining Mr Blaine's statement was carefully kept off the wires by the cable editor.

The New York Tribune says "the irrepressible prophet in Springfield, who has already killed off one good candidate by jumping up like a jack-in-a-box and yelling his name continually, is attempting a like service for Mr. Bristow by predicting that the still to be elected Massachusetts delegation will vote as a unit at Cincinnati for him."

The organization of the Skowhegan Blaine Club has been perfected by the election of Col. A. W. Wildes as President, L. H. Webb, S. J. Walton, R. B. Shepherd, and H. Bigelow as Vice-Presidents, C. A. Woodbury, Secretary, C. A. Priest, Treasurer, and Dr. J. S. Cushing, Col. A. W. Wildes, L. L. Wilton, John Weston and M. H. Hilton, Executive Committee.

We are confident that the action of the City Government in taking measures for the proper celebration of the Centennial Fourth, will meet the hearty approval of our citizens. A judicious programme of excercises can readily be arranged and successfully carried out.

We did not suppose the Bath Times intentionally omitted giving credit for the Harper's Magazine article, as our Sagadahoc neighbor is habitually very just in such matters. Hence we did not mention its name in our item.

The Troy (N. Y.) Whig says: "Mr. Blaine is now beyond question the favorite of a [illegible] of the Republicans [illegible] be [illegible] United States for the office of President. He has more friends in New York than any other candidate."

THE WATER WORKS ETC

BANGOR May 2, 1876

To the Editor of the Whig and Courier

Parturiunt montes nascetur ridiculus mus.

No sand eels could have shown more industry or perseverance in efforts to wiggle through obstructing gravel and stones, than have the city investigating committee on the Water Board to do the same thing in the same material.

This investigation might not unfairly be described as a sort of geological research, the committee having devoted much time and energy in groping among the stones of the Penobscot, much as a visionary scientist might in searching the ante-diluvian stones for a primeval man with about the same interest to the public. No blame however should attach to the honorable committee for failing to find that which did not exist.

From nothing (0) take nothing (0) and there remains (0).

The public can congratulate themselves and the committee can sympathize with them that their labors are finished.

Opus finest.

Now about the Water Board. They demanded an investigation and they certainly have got what they demanded with a vengeance. So far as the personal integrity and private characters of the gentlemen of the Water Board are concerned they stand just where they did before the investigation neither better nor worse.

Now about their action in their official capacity. Can they undertake to say what will be the effect of their demanded investigation upon the interest of the city as regards the stability of the dam either for supplying the city with water or as a great manufacturing power?

Is there anyone who having read the loose, babbling testimony before the investigating committee can say, to-day whether the dam is built on the ledge, on the rocks on the stone, on the gravel or on the sand?

Only time and a freshet can correct this blunder and solve the problem. To-day the Water Board ask: What shall we do? Why the matter is as plain as a pike staff. Ask the City Council to appropriate five thousand dollars, appoint a new committee, or perhaps what would be still better, constitute themselves a committee of the whole and have a good rousing investigation. Begin at the beginning say with the expenditure for the first preliminary survey, and so on item by item until the Board the public and everybody else is utterly sick and tired of the very sound and smell of an investigation. If this does not meet with approval then try this! Be men and stand up, mind your own business, say nothing, to anybody, go ahead and finish the dam, and do not imagine that every wind is a hurricane. J. C.

P. S. Since writing the above there has occurred the fiasco in regard to the water display. From a common sense point of view the interference of the city authorities and the Water Board to prevent this display would seem to be another blunder. The Water Board say that by the terms of the agreement the water should be used only for municipal purposes the [illegible] yesterday (May Day) was municipal purpose to all intent. Admitting however for the sake of the argument that the intended display would not have been municipal, still, under all the circumstances would it not have been better to have had it. Considering the doubt that has been thrown on the stability of the dam by the recent investigation, has not this last act thrown a doubt on the stability of the Water Works? If the condition of the Water Works is such that an accident is to be feared every time the hydrants are used why the sooner the accident occur the better for all parties. If the fire companies want to squirt the hydrants why not let them squirt? J. C.

DOMESTIC NEWS.

FORTY FOURTH CONGRESS—First Session

Senate

WASHINGTON, May 2.

Mr. Allison from the Committee on Indian Affairs reported favorably on the House bill appropriating $50,000 for subsistence supplies for the Apache Indians in Arizona and for the removal of the Indians [illegible] to the San Carlos Agency. Passed.

Mr. Conkling explained that the delay in reporting the Steamboat bill was owing to [illegible] having to be made in the copy [illegible] that the committee may hear interested parties on the subject.

The resolution of Mr. Hamlin to amend the rules so as to provide that the deliberations of the Senate on impeachment trials shall be in public was taken up and discussed until the expiration of the morning hour when it was laid aside and the consideration of the bill in relation to the Japanese indemnity fund was resumed.

A bill was introduced instructing the Committee on Commerce to report a bill providing for measures for the proper care of immigrants from other countries in connection with the Government of the various States. Laid over.

A resolution was adopted that the School Commissioners inform the Senate if there is any difference in the [illegible] regulating white and colored schools in the District of Columbia and if any difference, [illegible] reason is therefor.

A motion to strike out the words "If not be incompatible with the relations of the United States to other powers" was agreed to.

Mr. Sargent of Cal. moved to strike out the first section of the bill which provides for return of the fund to Japan after deducting the $125,000 to pay the officers and crews of the Wyoming and Jamestown. Pending discussion Mr. Morrill moved to proceed with the Executive business, but the chair laid before the Senate a message from the President enclosing the report of the Centennial Commissioners and inviting the two Houses of Congress to be present at the opening ceremonies on the 10th inst. It was ordered to be printed and lie on the table.

Mr. Sherman moved to take up the silver bill so that it could come up as unfinished business to-morrow, but Mr. Morrill, who had made a motion for an Executive session declined to withdraw it for that purpose. The Senate then went into Executive session and at 5 o'clock adjourned.

House

The Appropriation Committee decided to [illegible] the Post-office appropriation bill in the House to the exclusion of all other measures. Considerable discussion ensued as to whether the Geneva Award bill and the Hawaiian treaty should be taken up to-day but the committee finally decided as above.

A resolution to have Hallet Kilbourn examined before the real estate pool committee was laid on the table as a proposition [illegible].

Mr. [illegible] offered a resolution of inquiry into the Union Pacific Railroad Company's possession of the Little Rock and Fort Smith Railroad bonds. Adopted.

The resolution of censure of John Young Brown of Kentucky in the last House, was rescinded and expunged and the contested election case of Lemoyne vs Farwell [illegible]. Without closing the discussion the election case went over till to-morrow, and Mr. Payne of Ohio, from the Committee on Banking and Currency reported a bill authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury under such limits and regulations as will best secure a just and fair distribution of silver coin throughout the country, to issue silver coin now in the Treasury to an amount not exceeding $10,000,000 in exchange for an equal amount of legal tender notes; and providing that the notes so received and exchanged shall be reissued only on the retirement and destruction of a like sum of fractional currency received in the Treasury in payment of dues to the United States, and that such fractional currency when so substituted shall be destroyed and held as a part of the sinking fund as provided in the act of the 17th of April 1876.

At 5 o'clock the House adjourned without action on the resolution.

THE EMMA MINE

Mr Schenck's Statement Relative to His Letter of Resignation.

WASHINGTON, May 2. In the Emma Mine investigation to-day, Mr. Schenck admitted writing the original letter of resignation, which the chairman had received from London. Mr Schenck said he did not think much explanation was required, but expressed satisfaction that these papers were retained since the 1st of December, 1871. Before his resignation, which took place the 6th of December, he had not been in communication with the Directors and shareholders of the Emma Mining Co., as such, and had no access to their papers. His letter of resignation sent to the company, was all in his own handwriting, the date, body, signature and all. It was his own composition, written at his own suggestion, without anybody's help. In writing out his resignation from the original draft, it seemed he interpreted the words, "In consenting to become a Director, I knew that I but exercised a private and individual right not incompatible with public or official duty, but I prefer to take away from some who have criticised me, even a pretext for their comments or attacks." Mr. Schenck said the other paper seemed to be a copy of his resignation in Park's handwriting. He knew it was not his signature. It was but a copy of what he wrote.

Mr. Hewitt called Schenck's attention to several words altered, and Mr. Schenck said that they looked as if they were in his handwriting. It was the same ink. He did not know why Park made the copy. Park here said that the words were in his own handwriting. Mr. Hewitt said he was inclined to believe they were.

A Statement by Mr Conkling

The examination of Mr. Schenck was suspended to permit Senator Conkling to make a statement. He called attention to a letter of Lyon's, dated New York, May 30 1871, which was addressed to "Dear Jim" saying, "I have Conkling of New York, Stewart and Noah Davis to assist me here but do not tell a soul but John. I will have them both out and the marshal too unless he is straight. I think Patrick is all right. I am bound to have a trial as receiver at once."

Senator Conkling said if he was the Conkling mentioned in this letter, he had only to say it was without foundation. In fact he had no recollection of hearing of Lyon until recently when he read his name in the newspapers as a party in some way to this investigation and he had never received any communication from him. He was never engaged or retained professionally or otherwise in any matter pertaining to the Emma Mine or in the matter of the removal of any judge of Utah as referred to in the letter.

An Explanation by Lyon

Lyon being present he was permitted to explain. He did so by saying that Wm Head of San Francisco, one of the officers of the Emma Mine, told him he had employed Senator Conkling in their behalf, and that their interests were mutual in removing Judge McKean. Lyon said he never employed Senator Conkling in the matter. Senator Conkling asked whether he had any letter or communication from him. Lyon replied that Mr. Head while speaking of his strength told him he had Senator Conkling.

Senator Conkling observed that this statement of Lyon enabled him to add a word. He remembered a gentleman named Head, one of a numerous family in New York, calling on him at his home in Utica and inquiring of him whether an action of replevin or trover could be brought in New York to gain possession of some personal property which he thought was [illegible] of mines or specimens. Senator Conkling informed him there could be no difficulty in bringing such action in any matter within the jurisdiction of the courts. He took occasion to speak of Judge McKean in complimentary terms, having served with him in Congress.

Mr. Schenck's Examination Continued

The examination of Schenck was resumed. Hewitt asked him various questions as to the propriety of his dealing in stocks while holding a position of diplomatic representation. Schenck replied he had told the committee of all his transactions and did not think he had done anything morally wrong or unbecoming. He did not think he had violated any rule of propriety.

Park Recalled

Mr. Chittenden for Schenck recalled Park and showed him the letter of Schenck resigning the position of director in the Emma Mine Company dated Dec. 6, 1871. Park said this copy of the letter was in his own handwriting, the two words interlined "[illegible]" and "[illegible]" were in his own handwriting and he knew it. He [illegible] no recollection of the circumstances under which the copy was taken, but his impression was that he made this copy from some one else. Park thought he saw the draft of Schenck's letter and the original and conversed with Schenck as to what the latter should say in it, namely that he resigned because of unfriendly criticism and not because of dissatisfaction with the property. Park was again asked what profit he and his associates made by the sale of the Emma Mine stock. He had answered that question once to the best of his knowledge. He was perfectly willing to give information of his own matters to any member of the committee but could not give them his books or any information involving the business of other persons.

After Park's examination Schenck again with his face purple with rage denounced the statement that he copied his letter of resignation from the draft in Park's writing as utterly false, as a false [illegible]. An argument ensued as to putting in the evidence the two letters from Fisher to Duncan the banker relative to Schenck. Adjourned without decision.

This is the first time he has done any duty as a General officer since he left his regiment as a line officer early in the war.

Our diplomatic service—What the President thinks of the action of the ex-Confederate House.

It is stated that the Conference Committee of Congress cannot agree upon the Diplomatic appropriation bill. President Grant is reported to have said if the Senate recedes from the amendments in any important particulars he will veto the bill. It is believed that rather than make the Government service abroad any less important than it now is, Ministers, attaches and Consuls will be withdrawn by the President and the responsibility thrown upon the House. The President thinks our diplomatic service should be made stronger rather than weaker.

THE WINSLOW CASE.

The American Legation Informed that the Forger will be released—Two other parties to be set at liberty.

LONDON, May 2. The British Government have informed the American Legation it will release Winslow to-morrow, Wednesday, and two other prisoners—Gray of New York and Brent of Louisville—whose extradition is also claimed, will be released when their terms expire. Although this notification has been given, the Government has not formally replied to America's argument owing to the absence of Lord Derby, caused by the recent death of his mother. In addition to the arguments already made public touching the interpretation of the act of 1870, America has addressed a precedent case occurring in 1871, wherein Chief Justice Cockburn ordered the surrender to France, under similar circumstances, upon the mere opinion of the French Consul that the prisoner would only be tried for the offense for which he was extradited, the Chief Justice remarking that even without the Consul's assurance, he should have decided against the prisoner. A report is current that the opposition intend attacking the Government upon the Winslow affair. Mr. Gladstone's Government formally, through Attorney-General Coleridge supported an interpretation of the act exactly the opposite of the present Government.

COUGHS AND COLDS.

From Samuel A. Walker, Esq., the well-known Real Estate Auctioneer of Boston: "Having experienced results of a satisfactory character from the use of WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY, in cases of severe colds, during the past two years, I have full faith in its renovating power. I was first induced to try this medicine by the strong recommendation of a friend, who was well-nigh gone with consumption, and whose relief from the use of it satisfied me of its great value in cases of colds and decline, and most clearly demonstrated to my mind its great value as a restorative, that only needs a fair trial to insure a grateful recognition from the public."

Oh my back!! How often we hear the words. Pain in your back nine times out of ten arises from Kidney Disease. HUNT'S REMEDY used as directed will cure all Diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Organs. Try HUNT'S REMEDY. eod&w1w may2

TO ALL, particularly invalids, spring is a trying season. Indications of sickness should at once be attended to. Fatal diseases may be caused by allowing the bowels to become constipated and the system to remain in a disordered condition, until the disorder has time to develop itself. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, is an old and truthful saying. Therefore we advise all who are troubled with the complaints now very prevalent—headache, indigestion, disordered liver, want of appetite, nausea or feverish skin, to take without delay, Schenck's Mandrake Pills. We know of no remedy so harmless and decisive in its action. It at once strikes at the root of the disease and produces a healthy tone to the system. People never need suffer from any disease arising from a disordered condition of the liver if they would take this excellent medicine when they feel the first indications of the malady. Families leaving home for the summer months should take three or four boxes of these pills with them. They have an almost instantaneous effect. They will relieve the patient of headache in one or two hours, and will rapidly cleanse the liver of surrounding bile, and will effectually prevent a bilious attack. They are sold by all druggists. eod1m may1

HASTY CONSUMPTION CURED BY FELLOWS' HYPOPHOSPHITES.

CARBONEAR, Newfoundland,
Jan 3, 1871.

MR. JAMES I. FELLOWS.

DEAR SIR—I came to this country in May, 1869. I found a countryman of mine laboring under some affection of the lungs. Fortunately I learned that your Syrup could be obtained at Mr. Dearin's, in St. John's, and immediately procured some, (showed one to W. H. Thompson, who ordered a supply from you at once). This [illegible] day afternoon; at night he took [illegible] dose, and in the morning he [illegible] the very results notified on the [illegible]. CENTAUR LINIMENTS.

White, for the Human Family. Yellow, for Horses and Animals.

These Liniments are simply the wonder of the world. Their effects are little less than marvelous, yet there are some things which they will not do. They will not cure cancer or mend broken bones, but they will always allay pain. They have straightened fingers, cured chronic rheumatism of many years standing, and taken the pain from terrible burns and scalds [illegible]

The WHITE LINIMENT is for the human family. It will drive Rheumatism, Sciatica and Neuralgia from the system, cure Lumbago, Chilblains, [illegible] and most Cutaneous Eruptions. It extracts frost from frozen limbs and [illegible] the POISON OF BITES AND STINGS of venomous [illegible]

For sprains or bruises it is the most potent remedy ever discovered. The Centaur Liniment is used [illegible] CAKED BREASTS, Earache and Weak Back. The following is but a sample of numerous testimonials:

This pipe is enameled under great heat, both inside and out, which gives it a hard glossy surface, and preserves it from rust or corrosion. S. Dana Hayes, State Assayer and Chemist for the State of Massachusetts, says: "I commenced the investigation with some doubts about your Enameled Pipe, but the severe tests which I have employed proves that it is perfectly harmless and possesses great durability, these being the properties of most importance in water pipes."
